AUTO DEALERS DO BIG '22 BUSINESS

Optimism Reigns, with Car Buying Much Heavier Than Last Year.

Coincident with the budding of trees, warming of the air, and that enervated feeling of mind and body commonly called spring fever, comes a widespread desire for a bright new car. According to Janesville automobile dealers, it is being largely satisfied. And to the casual observer it is true for all over the city can be seen people with a proud look of ownership on their faces trying out their new cars. Some have owned cars before and are now promoted in the class of those owning sedans, while others have just stepped out from the pedestrian stage to that of car ownership, after many bouts with automobile dealers in deciding what car to buy.

It is the banner season for the dealers, and it also seems to be a banner year for all are unanimous in saying that conditions and prospects for them are much better than last year. Some even go so far as to say that this spring promises to excel that of two years ago, one never to be forgotten in the car business as well as in other businesses.

30 Pet. Better, Says Russell
"Business is 50 per cent better this spring than last," said A. A. Russell. "The business and the confidence of the new year, and Chicago shows early this year, showed how business was to be. The shows were larger than ever before, and business in the local territory promises to keep up with it. In these latter cities, as far as the selling of automobiles goes, I think it is true of all lines of automobiles, and from what I hear is true of the truck business."

Free-War Prices Batten
Other automobile dealers are of about the same opinion. William O'Connell, however, was even more optimistic than Mr. Russell. "Our business this spring is even better than it was two years ago," he said. "There are a number of reasons for this picking up of business. In our line, it is because of the values that are obtainable. With the line of cars we are handling, more can be obtained for the purchaser's money than even before the war. Prices on cars have been greatly reduced, and improvements put into the cars which create a greater value than the company was producing in 1917."

"People waited last year, repining their cars, but this year they have been forced to buy new cars if they are to drive at all. Then I think business conditions are improving all the time. The farmers are getting more for their produce than they have been and this has had its effect on city industries."

Like Last Normal Year
J. A. Drummond said that business is a great deal better than at this time last year. "This year doesn't compare with the spring of 1920," he said. "Dealers will never see another year like that one. This spring gives good indications, however, of being a normal year in the automobile industry."

Dealers Working More
Robert Bugger, Ford dealer, is of the opinion that, although business is better, it is due to more hard work on the part of the dealers. "There are fewer orders on our books than there were at this time last year," he stated. "We are going over our prospects more thoroughly, however, and are making a greater effort to sell our cars than we have for several years past. By this means we hope to make it a normal year, and according to present prospects, it will be one."

"Prices are way down, and that accounts for much of the buying. With prices as they are at present, almost anybody can buy a car. Trucks are not moving well and will not until business picks up more. Contractors and those in many other lines of business have stored their trucks until business becomes better."

"Prospects are much better than they were last year," said E. A. Somers. "I think business conditions all over the country are improving. Dealers, however, are not letting the general improvement in business satisfy them. They are getting out and are working their prospects hard."

YOU TELL 'EM

Reporters ask a daily question of five persons. Here's what they say:

TODAY'S QUESTION:
Do you believe married women are justified in taking positions?

W. N. Cash, 605 Fifth avenue—"Sure, I believe in letting them work if they want to."

Mrs. A. C. Hough, 108 St. Lawrence avenue—"Well, it all depends. If a woman has no home responsibilities or children, I think she has a right to work. Every one should be able to take care of herself, and I don't believe any woman should be forced to depend on her husband as closely as to entirely neglect her duties."

Joseph De Fay, 1133 Cherry street—"No, I am not in favor of married women working—not now, at least. When so many men and boys are walking the streets without work, the girls and men should be given first opportunity at positions. I think."

William G. Lathrop, 714 Center street—"New women who have held good positions are content to give them up and stay home. I think that they are more satisfied when occupied in their own positions. It makes for a more congenial spirit in the home."

Mrs. Thelma Withers, 141 West Park street—"I believe it is just a matter of choice with those concerned. However, it seems to me that when a woman is justified in working to help her husband get his start in life."

Mr. Farmer—the "Farmers' Exchange" starts Saturday. Have you listed your excess stock?

ELKHORN

Elkhorn—George Welch, Beloit contractor, unloaded the balance of his road machinery in Delavan Thursday and everything is ready for the start of work on the Delavan-Elkhorn concrete highway.

To Form Civic Club.
The business men of Elkhorn will meet in the Community house Friday night to perfect the organization of a commercial club to take action on other matters of unusual interest to Elkhorn.

Plan Last Card Game.
The last of a series of "500" games between Elkhorn and Delavan Masons will be held in the latter place Monday night.

Watch for the "Farmers' Exchange" starting Saturday. Many bargains are listed there by the farmers.

er than ever before in an effort to sell cars. They have come to realize that the only way to get rid of the depression, about which they have been talking for the past year and a half, is to get out and work.

Offers Are Tempting
The temptation to buy a car this year is greater than before because of the attractive offers being put out by every manufacturer. The lines of cars are usually beautiful, and the manufacturer has come to realize that with the many women who are now buying, the beauty of the car must be one of its biggest selling points, ranking with the quality of the motor. Consequently, the lines are more beautiful, and greater care is taken in equipping. The more elaborate sedans are now veritable palaces. Vanity boxes and every equipment for the comfort of the rider has been added, while even boxes for ashes have been placed in some of the more elaborate sedans. The tendency has been toward smaller sedans, however. Many owners of large cumbersome cars have sold them and purchased small enclosed cars.

(By Gazette Correspondent.)
Jefferson.—At a meeting Wednesday, officers and directors of the Jefferson County Farm Loan Bureau decided to take up the matter of organizing a Farm Loan association in Jefferson county.

The need for a farm loan association through which loans may be secured, does not appear very urgent, however, it was declared, indicating sound agricultural conditions. The officers of the bureau passed a resolution favoring the Community Breed association in Jefferson county. There are over 1,200 high grade Holstein and Guernsey breeders in Jefferson county.

Irvin C. Haas has opened a plumbing establishment in the John W. Heid building at 410 Milwaukee street. Mr. Haas was engaged in business in Columbus for the last 10 years.

Those present included road foremen, patrolmen, some members of the county board and others interested in road construction and maintenance. E. W. Sawtelle and J. Isabella represented the state highway commission and on the program also were the following Jefferson county men: August Segoria, William Freitag, William Wendell.

R. D. Royce, M. A. Piper and C. T. Hughes.

Contracts will be let on Friday by the state road and bridge committee for construction of the concrete roads on highway 28 from Jefferson to Port Atkinson and Jefferson to Johnson Creek, also on highway 41 west of Jefferson. Highway Commissioner R. D. Royce expects to make an early start on the work.

A free address, accompanied by pictures, will be given by Dr. Chester M. Echols, Milwaukee, a director of the Wisconsin Lakes and Parks association, at the Idle Hour, Jefferson, Friday night at 7:40, to arouse interest in purchase of the proposed Northern Lakes park. F. WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE? George Morton goes back at the thought of the planter, a rich man, when he loses all his property—a liver and a horse. George becomes a horse groom to Sylvia Planter when she is thrown from her horse. Sylvia is thrown from her horse and thinking her unconscious, George kisses her, calling out that he loves her. She drives him from the place and he goes to horsewhip him, but in a fair fight, he seeks an education, goes to Princeton, becomes a football player, and aids his college to win from Harvard. He makes many acquaintances, and one of them is Sylvia Planter, who shall marry him and meet her several times, each time seemingly to bring the breach between them. But he continues in the determination. Betty Allison is very kind to George, and at her home she meets her friend, Sylvia, who is embarrassed. George gets a job with a brokerage office, makes a success, and is called to a high social position. But Sylvia still flouts him, showing preference for a cad named "Clayton Smith," which is embarrassing. George gets a job with a brokerage office, makes a success, and is called to a high social position. But Sylvia still flouts him, showing preference for a cad named "Clayton Smith," which is embarrassing. George goes to training camp and says farewell to Sylvia before sailing to fight overseas.

It was Wanda, indeed, who drew George from his preoccupation, and reminded him that another world existed as yet scarcely more than threatened by the driving invaders. George and the lion looked at each other one night when Wanda was just back from a northern weekend.

"Saw Sylvia. You know, George, she's turning out to be a year and a half like a debutante."

George sat down, uneasy, wondering what the other's unprepared announcement was designed to convey. "I'll lay you out with a cigar," that delirious, lightning-like thought, "that she forgets the Elodgett fiasco, and marries before now falls."

Had it been designed as a warning? George studied Wanda, trying to read his expression, but the light was reflected by heavy, valuable, and smothering shades; and Wanda sat at some distance from the nearest, close to a window to catch what breeze stole through. George's mind went back to the night when he had mentioned Sylvia that self-revealing day in France; but George had guessed then that he must have known of his persistent ambition and had wondered why his unexpected communicativeness hadn't included it. At least a lack of curiosity now was useless, so George said:

"Who's the man?"

"I don't suggest a name," Wanda drawled. "I merely call attention to a possibility. Perhaps discussing the charming lady at all were a trifle out of bounds; but we've known the Planter many years; years enough to wonder why Sylvia hasn't been caught before, why Elodgett failed at the last minute."

George stirred impatiently.

"It was inevitable," he should. I once disliked Josiah, but that was because I was too young to see him straight. Just the same, he wasn't up to her. Most of all, he was too old."

"I dare say," Wanda said. "But the others? It isn't exaggerated to say that she might have had about any man in this country or England. She hasn't had. She's the loveliest thing about, and how many years since she was introduced—many, many years. It's George, mumbled. "What odds?" George muttered. "She's still young."

"He felt self-conscious and warm. Was Wanda trying to make him say too much?"

"Why do you ask me?"

Wanda yawned.

"Gossiping, George. Poking about

TODAY'S RECIPES

Smothered Steak—Cut one pound round steak in pieces suitable for serving. Pound one-half cup flour into it and season. Sear on top of the stove, cover with boiling water and put on tight fitting lid. Simmer gently until meat is tender. If you are baking it must be cooked in the oven.

Potato Cakes—These are made from leftover mashed potatoes from dinner the day before. Mix with well beaten eggs, form into cakes and brown on each side.

Cottage Cheese Salad—Mix cottage cheese with boiled salad dressing and add chopped pimiento if desired. Place on lettuce leaf.

Apricot Whip—Press three-quarters cup stewed apricots through a coarse sieve. Add to well beaten white of one egg and one-half cup sugar. Beat thoroughly and chill.

UTILIZING THE WORN ARTICLES

Old sheets which have passed the stage of usefulness should be torn in half, the more solid outside joined together for the center and the thin parts, once the middle, trimmed away and rehemmed for outside.

If the towels are thin in the center, the good part may be cut away and made into wash cloths, silver polishers or what not. If at the ends, cut off the split portion and hem the towels, setting them apart for occasional use.

In sickness there is nothing so comfortable as little soft, frayed towels, which may be thrown away and used, using. The good part of the discarded articles may also be used. Indeed, their uses in the sick room are endless, and in the case also of the new baby, whose swaddling clothes should be of the softest material. Big hemmed portions are invaluable for first diapers and bath and crib sheets.

When it comes to blankets there are many ways in which they may be put to use. If the blanket is good enough, merely take bits from an older one, patch the holes and rehem the ends which, with long use, split up in ways dangerous to the health. If there are little holes, ravel out some of the edges for darning wool and mend them with a coarse needle.

There are other ways of fixing up old blankets, so that their lives may be prolonged. One is to double the worn threadbare over and quilt them for nursery crib summer use. These also serve for the warm bed pieces, which should be put over all mattresses under the sheet. As to new blankets, a fibron binding of the ends before any use of them is an excellent and simple precaution against the end-splitting which is bound to come in time.

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlyle H. Holcomb

HOW CAME SUCH A LONG NECK?

Did Tinker Bob to Dr. Giraffe: "How in the world did you ever get such a long neck? I have seen necks before, but I never saw one so long as yours. Did your grandmother have a neck like yours?"

Dr. Giraffe just had to laugh for he had never been asked that question before. The creature, too, it was a matter of course that he had always had such a neck and asked no questions.

"Yes, my grandmother had a neck just as long as mine," said he, "but my great grandmother did not have so long a neck. You see there was a time in the jungles when there was not so much food on the ground as there is now and my great grandmother was living where there were more trees and not so much to eat on the ground and naturally she had to stretch her neck to reach the tall branches. Well, as she stretched her neck it began to grow longer and then when my grandmother came her neck was longer because Mother Nature saw that it was necessary in order that she get some food from the tree top."

"But where did you live?" asked Tinker Bob, who was very curious.

"We lived in a place where there was more desert than anything else," Dr. Giraffe said.

"How do you get along with Mr. Lion?" asked Tinker Bob.

"We don't get along. I let him alone and if I see him first I keep out of his way for he would like to eat me up if he had the chance. Many of my brothers have lost their lives because of the lion."

"Don't you see that follow over there?" Why are you not afraid of him?"

"O my, you frighten me so. Is that real lion? I have not seen him move. I know I cannot be a real lion or he would have been after me long before now."

"That is a real fellow, all right," said Tinker Bob, "but I have kept him close to the ground so that he could do you no harm."

"O King, I would have you visit my

"That will be all the better for Tim is a friend of mine anyway." Tim danced for joy. He could carry his own trunk now and it pleased him greatly. Silky, the monkey, was also pleased to think he did not have to carry it any more.

"Gumph and away we go with Dr. Giraffe," cried Tim.

"If you want to ride with me, come right along," said the doctor.

Silky didn't need any further invitation. He jumped on the back of the tall fellow, climbed to the highest point on his neck, and then were off. Saturday—Dr. Giraffe Sees a Friend.

BEAUTY CHATS by Edna Kent Forbes

SMOOTH WHITE HANDS

The woman who wishes to cultivate smooth white hands must learn how to work with gloves on. No woman can do housework and keep her hands smooth of skin and free from stains. She can keep them much better looking than the average housewife does, for the average housewife is very careless about the appearance of her hands. I do not blame her, for the work of even a small house is quite enough to occupy all the time and strength of the ordinary woman. So those who cannot do less work must find some effective means of protecting the hands.

This means working with gloves, rubber gloves when the hands are in water and canvas gloves for sweeping, dusting and garden work. At first gloves will seem awkward, but in a week or less you can manage quite as conveniently with them as without. In fact, if the hands are prematurely old, if the skin is dry and wrinkled and the nails are developing ugly ridges, you can turn your housework into a beauty treatment for the hands by rubbing them full of cold cream or vasoline, or some nourishing oil such as olive or almond oil, or even full of plain white-lard. Then pull on the rubber gloves and continue with your housework knowing that your hands are being nourished and kept youthful, and that when you are through your work and wash off the oil you will find the skin smooth, clean and soft looking.

After a little the hands will begin to grow younger in appearance, and even the busiest housewife need not be ashamed of them and of her fingers. The best part of the treatment is that it takes up no extra time and its expense is only the cost of two pairs of working gloves.

Spookier—As you are only 23 years of age there is no reason why you should be concerned about your figure being out of proportion. In a few more years your stomach will not

"Why, yes," answered the boss, and then he asked:

"What for?"

"Well, suh, Mistuh Gawgee, that them am just wut I bin huntin' fuh to make me some winlah undah clothes."

Mrs. Hatfield accosted a colored woman who was passing. "Do you know anyone I can hire to help me clean house?"

"No'm, I ain't knowin' any colored ladies what needs work, but I knows a colored man what cleans windows and does some other kinds of house-cleaning."

"What does he charge?"

"Sixty cents an hour."

"Why, he makes more than some school teachers, doesn't he?"

"Yes'm, but school teachers only has to use de haid."

We were taking the fresh-air children back to the city. At the last minute we missed small Annie. We made a hurried search and found her at last on the floor beside her bed, with her face buried in the pillow.

"What's the matter, Annie?" we asked. "What are you crying for?"

"I ain't crying," was the indignant reply. "I was just kissing my bed good-bye, 'cause I don't know when I'll ever see another."

SUGGESTIONS

Perhaps the idea is not a good one when applied extensively to frocks, but it is a good one when applied to houses. When you plan your new house, it is a small one, too, and think that within the next decade you may want a larger house. The size of your family may increase. You may do more entertaining. And the house that has been built with the possibility of expansion can be expanded at very much less expense than the house that has been built with no such forethought.

In placing your house on your lot always make allowance for a possible garage, and in setting out your trees and shrubs keep the garage space clear from the permanent shrubs and trees which might have to be dug out before long.

Boosters Roll Prelims in So. Wis.--No. Ill. Pin Tourney

Copyright 1920 by Geo. McManus

VISITING TEAMS START ARRIVING ASK FOR SUPPORT

With the crack of pins amid thunderous applause of an admiring gallery, the Southern Wisconsin-Northern Illinois bowling tournament got under way Thursday night at the West side alleyway, Pierpont Wood, of the First National Bank, and Roy McDonald of the Kiwanis club, had the honor of rolling the first balls, and contrary to tradition, both got strikes.

There followed an exhibition of bowling seldom seen here. The official scorer was kept busy marking misses where strikes ought to be and splits where spares should be. The first game ended in a deadlock, both sides rolling 711, which made the gallery wild.

Ponty Wood was the feature of the first game. He struck in the first frame, and then after a lapse of considerable time, rolled a strike in the second frame. The next two frames, however, he rolled a total of five strikes, then another release came on, and he finished with 132, which stood for high game until the last game, when William McCue of the same team got his weather eye on the pins, and came through with 207.

Robert Conway, of the cash counter, featured the pin miss and a split for a grand total of 63. This game had no competition for the booby prize. Bob showed with them in that game by shooting 161 in the last game.

Kiwanians Hold Lead.
Frank Trevorah of the Club men featured by picking up several split spits, and Roy McDonald came all the way down from Edgerton to average 148. Wood was high average man for the Banks with 492. Dave Drummond was high for the Clubbers with 518.

Kiwanians now have the honor of leading the tournament with a total of 2240; the Banks are second with 2181.

Friday three teams from out of the city took the drives, Delavan, Ft. Atkinson, and Darlington. They shot their five men, double and singles. Saturday at 8 p. m. there will be four more visiting teams, the Al Dona Drugs of Chicago, and three teams from the Forest Products Laboratory of Madison.

ROCKFORD POSTPONED GAME WITH LOCALS; UNION PLAYS Y. W. C. A.

112 BOYS ENTER "Y" HEXATHLON MEET; MORE YET TO SIGN

A total of 112 boys have been weighed in for the "Y" hexathlon contests. Boys of the senior and newsboy classes are still to be weighed. The Junior "B" starts work Saturday. The meet will be run in relays, continuing through next week.

Busy Man's Sport Page

BY FRANK SINGLAIR

According to announcement entries are coming in from other cities to the Southern Wisconsin-Northern Illinois pin meet opened here Thursday night. Janesville has been laying claim to Chicago, Milwaukee and many other cities are said to be taking an interest by promising to send squads. Under such conditions, the city cannot afford to remain out of the meet. It must come in strong. Entries close Saturday night.

Coach Grandall's conference at Milton college Saturday night for the purpose of forming a circuit of Southern Wisconsin high schools should do wonders in putting high school athletics upon a former basis. Rivalry will be keener even than in the past—There are many excellent and desirable points to the plan. While some believe Janesville and Beloit should not be included because of their size, such an argument neglects the record of the past will show. Admission of these cities would not hinder their booking games with larger clubs. Rather it would work for an all round benefit.

The writer picked up information of Madison boys riding "blind baggage" in order to see the Whitewater tournament. LaCrosse goes one better with a story about five Normal school girls who climbed on the tender of a train bound for Oshkosh to root for their team in the state normal school series. Twelve young women tried to "bump" their way but seven were "shooed" off by the C. M. & St. P. yardmaster. The five got to their destination.

For lack of cooperation, the American legion department of Wisconsin has been unable to create an organization for boosting athletics. There have been a number of legion basketball teams in the smaller towns during the season now closing but the larger cities are not joining. The Gazette offers the legion every aid through publicity in entering the sporting field, believing its high ideals will work for good.

A Flint newspaper prints a long list of allis offered by its five bowling teams that failed to get in the money at the A. B. C. meet in Toledo. It takes a dig at the pin pushers for their lack of sportsmanship. If a man would apply the same brain power to finding what is wrong with his game as he does in looking for a hole he would be held in better esteem.

The 1922 Washington state convention of the American legion is trying to bring about the "Glory of the Ages" between the Rev. W. Beard, Presbyter, pastor at Tacoma, and the Rev. Earl A. Blackman, Episcopalian, Kansas. Both are good with the gloves and are middleweights.

William T. Tilden will not go to England this summer to defend his tennis title.

Three 1921 finalists qualified for the women's national indoor tennis doubles windup Friday.

The indoor track and field meet of the Central A. A. U. will be held at Chicago Friday.

The A. A. U. title swim races will be held in Omaha, March 30-31.

Fight Talk—Jim Londas defeated Jim Linow in 11 rounds of a 15 round wrestling match at Chicago. Joe Dawson, Milwaukee favorite, meets Ever Hammer at Chicago Friday. Mike Gibbons fights Harry Greb at Jersey City May 1 to avenge his brother Tom. Dave Shade reached Milwaukee to train for his match with Pinky Mitchell Monday. Timothy J. O'Connor, notified at Elizabeth, N. J., Thursday he was heir to $1,000,000, said he would keep on training boxers. Helzie Engel, Dubuque, claims of middleweight title threw Henry Stoen, lightweight champ of Wisconsin, in straight falls.

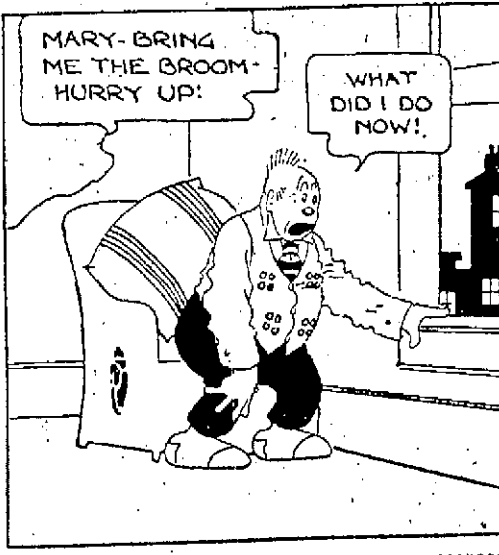

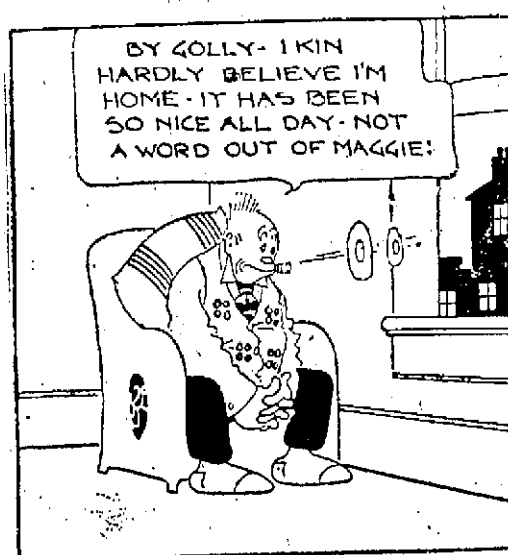

The Havolines of Lawrenceville, Ill., with Art Schindler, former of the Samson Tractors, at short, opened training.

Dr. Paul Haege, national title holder, was eliminated from the semi-finals of the handball meet, Milwaukee, by Art Schindler, Milwaukee A. C.

Duncan Head, Penn track star, was operated upon on board ship on way to meet against Cambridge and Oxford.

Kentucky university turned down invitation to join the mid-west conference.

Gas Buggies—The fable of the broadminded citizen.

Upsets Rule First Day of State High Tourney

(Special to the Gazette.)

Madison—Surprises were numerous in the first day of the state high school basketball championship tourney being held here at the university gymnasium. Watertown, believed by all to have the best chance for the title, was eliminated, as were Menominee and Superior. The scores of the first day's play:

LaCrosse 5; Watertown 13
Rhinelander 15; Fall Creek 13
New Richmond 22; Menominee 7
Fond du Lac 21; Argyle 11.
Fond du Lac, picked for second place, remains in the running with University. LaCrosse, Rhinelander and New Richmond, Fond du Lac plays Wisconsin high at 7:30 Friday night and New Richmond is booked against LaCrosse in the elimination for the title, Rhinelander drawing the bye.

Five hundred Watertown fans accompanied the winners of the Milwaukee Normal district meet to Madison. They received a hard setback when LaCrosse, held to be one of the weakest teams in the classic, slipped them into the consolations.

Wisconsin and Superior put on a battle of action. Two long shots by Otis, the lad who put the Madison team on ice in the White-water district title from Evansville high last week, saved the Capital city five from a trimming.

The Rhinelander-Fall Creek battle went into an overtime period. It was a fierce scrap, the first half ending 7-7 and the scheduled time, 11-11.

New Richmond is unusual in the tourney turning from an apparent weak sister into one of the strongest lives in the running. This has been due so far to the stellar work of Williams, forward, and Hawkins, guard, the latter featuring in floor work.

Watertown were to meet at 6 p. m. Fall Creek drew the bye.

GRANT BOYS WIN

The seventh grade of Grant school defeated the seventh of Washington at Tallman's lot Thursday afternoon, 16-4. Hagen pitched for Washington with Fraunfelder and Litney, the Grant battery.

PARENTS TO BLAME FOR UNRULY BOYS

Dorrans Gives Teachers-to-Be "Tips" on How to Handle Them.

BY ELEANOR HEMMING
Janesville High School Graduate.

The bad boys in school have their parents to blame, said Principal J. M. Dorrans of the vocational school, speaking before the Rock county training school, Thursday. "It will be found that the boys who are wilful at school have been allowed to grow up this way at home, and expect to do as they please everywhere else. Although some are spoiled at home, they behave well at school."

"Although the teachers of the boys, the never receives credit for any good traits that may develop in them, he said. "These are inherited from the parents while their bad habits are acquired outside the home."

"Children will always challenge a new teacher who comes to school and in the first 15 minutes she will either win or lose. She must accept the challenge and win so this will not occur again. It is the duty of the teacher to become acquainted with the parents early in the year, and get their co-operation before it is too late. In this way serious misunderstandings may oftentimes be avoided."

How to Handle Boys

"Every boy takes pride in doing something for his teacher. The boy who is of more or less trouble should be allowed to perform certain tasks for the teacher and should be made to feel that he is indispensable to the school," Mr. Dorrans remarked. "Boys do not like to be 'poked' in the eye, but they will accept of it if it is better to make him ashamed by having him remain in the room, rather than by sending him into the hall where he learns nothing. This proves to the boy and to the teacher too, that she cannot handle him. The best way to keep him out of mischief is to keep him busy and interested in his work. If it becomes monotonous to him, change the kind of work."

"Boys have great confidence in their teachers and are willing to dispute with anyone regarding something the teacher has told them. Many boys thought to be incorrigible are merely misunderstood by their teachers."

Mr. Dorrans believes to work in the country school is the best test of teaching work that can be done by anybody, and that the successful moral teacher deserves a great deal of credit.

Principal Dorrans drew many pertinent illustrations from his own rich experience in school work, both in this country and in Scotland. The talk given Thursday was of a thoroughly practical character and the young teachers felt that the suggestions

SPRING'S ARRIVAL MEANS MORE WORK FOR THE BARBERS

Just because some weathermen years ago decided that spring opened on March 21, has not in the past always brought growing weather on that date but the high mark of 57 above on Thursday and the bright sun-shiny weather which has prevailed since March 21, is a good reason to believe that it is here to stay.

Sages declare many revolutionary changes take place with the arrival of the warm season. People wear silly smiles, seeds start sprouting, birds start chirping, marbles make their appearance, baseball staves a comeback, fishing tackle comes out of the attic and into use and house cleaning and moving is in vogue.

They can't explain the reason but barbers, cleaning and pressing establishments and soda fountain stands claim there is a big increase in business after March 21. Masculine love of a neat appearance is heightened and more business results. Some barbers claim that men let their hair grow longer during the winter and propensities of pressions would be of distinct benefit to them when they begin the actual work of teaching in the rural schools. Principal Dorrans demonstrated conclusively that he is a master-hand in the great business of school management.

SINGLE SIX YEAR TERM DISCUSSED

Harding Not Averse to Change; Advisers Are Not Unanimous.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright 1922, by Janesville Gazette.

Washington—President Harding is not averse to the enactment of a constitutional amendment, limiting the chief executive of the United States to a single term of six years.

Although Representative Wood of Indiana, republican, who has just introduced in congress such a proposal for a constitutional amendment, was said at the White House to have refrained from discussing the suggestion with the president, it is a fact that Mr. Harding recently expressed in informal discussion a deep interest in the question of what should be the presidential tenure.

Mr. Harding is not particularly concerned whether the limitation affects his own tenure or not. He is said to have remarked on one occasion that it would be a waste of time to discuss to him if the question of re-election were disposed of definitely during his term of office. It is also true that some of Mr. Harding's advisers have differed with him on the merits of a single presidential term and have urged that the present unwritten custom of the American people is, after all, the most satisfactory way of dealing with presidential succession.

As to Mr. Harding's future so far as Mr. Harding is concerned, even if a constitutional amendment were passed by two-thirds of both houses of congress and ratified by three-fourths of the states before the election of 1924, it would not affect the length of his present term. There would be no bar, either, against Mr. Harding's re-election for a term or six years beginning in March, 1925. But those who know Mr. Harding best say that if a federal amendment providing for a single six-year term were to be added to the constitution, he would consider himself bound by it and would decline to be a candidate for re-nomination.

There are diverse views in the administration circle as to the single term. Attorney General Daugherty is said to be one of those who think the present system is all right. Others, however, believe that the desire for re-election gets into the minds of American presidents, and frequently makes them less positive in their decision during their last term. Some argue, too, that a president who takes a firm attitude frequently is threatened with political reprisals if he is a candidate for re-election, whereas if there were a single term he would be

No Clunker for It
Few federal amendments are adopted unless there is behind them active organizations. The merits or demerits of the present scheme have been agitating the public very much and no political organization has been clamoring for a change in presidential tenure.

The last formal action taken by a national body was that which the national convention of the democratic party took at Baltimore in 1912, more or less at the behest of William Jennings Bryan. Woodrow Wilson never felt himself bound by that plank, but his viewpoint was that it was none of his business but the affair of the democratic party, and if the party decided to change its mind at a future convention it could do so. History showed that the democrats unanimously reversed themselves by nominating Mr. Wilson four years later at the St. Louis convention.

Opposed by Wilson
Just after the election of 1912 the platform did come up for discussion in congress, when a resolution similar to that of Representative Wood of Indiana was introduced and was considered seriously by a committee of the house of representatives. Mr. Wilson expressed himself in a long letter to Mitchell Palmer, then chairman of the democratic caucus. Mr. Wilson was against a change in the present system. He argued that four years was sometimes too long for a man who had proved himself unable to fulfill the tasks assigned to him by the electorate and four years was often too short for a president who had laid out a constructive program and was doing his job efficiently. He contended that the American people could be trusted to take care of the question through the processes of time as if both the republican and democratic candidates might be committed to the proposal. Since then nothing has been said about it, and the action by Representative Wood of Indiana is the first taken by a member of the republican party to bring the issue out for public discussion.

Mr. Harding's Attitude
Mr. Harding's views on a single term were discussed during the campaign at Marion and it looked for time as if both the republican and democratic candidates might be committed to the proposal. Since then nothing has been said about it, and the action by Representative Wood of Indiana is the first taken by a member of the republican party to bring the issue out for public discussion.

Pledged to Single Term
An interesting sidelight on the question which never has been published but which is curiously related to the new proposal occurred when Governor Cox of Ohio was writing his speech of acceptance of the democratic nomination for the presidency. His impulse was to include a public promise that if elected he would pledge himself to a single term. Some of his political friends advised him against the move. They said it might be considered bad taste to make such a statement when the party platform had not made a declaration on the subject. Governor Cox kept his mind open until the last minute and planned to insert a paragraph on the single term issue so that it could be telegraphed to the newspapers and included in the speech which had been mailed several days in advance. It was thought best by him finally to exclude the question from his speech of acceptance, and there was an explanation that if an issue were developed in the campaign he would make a speech upon it.

GO SWIMMING IN APRIL, SAYS MEAD

Next Month to Be Warmer Than Other Aprils, He Predicts.

Now comes L. C. Mead, Janesville's weather wizard, to smash the old time belief that the prevailing winds of the 21st, 22nd and 23rd of March govern the weather for the months of April, May and June. "To think those three days govern the entire spring is a very foolish idea," he asserts, "and people who base too much on that will be fooled the same as we." He has seen some of our best warm changes of the moon overcome and put an end to even stubborn northeast winds.

Then, he goes on to predict "the kids will be in swimming by the end of April."

The heavy winds and mixture of rain, snow and sleet of last Saturday and Sunday and, Monday, he calls the spring equinoctial storm, be predicted for the 26th or 27th.

East to Get Fooled
While the rain storm is billed for the 26th and 27th of March, behind time, I thought the stormy weather of the last few days of February would break the drought conditions and would be on time.

3rd and 4th, while the long spell of dry weather in March would likely put that storm period a day or two behind time," he says. "So you see how easy it is to get fooled some times. Because of the drought and the fact we lost out on so many

Milton Glee Club Scores Big Hit Here

True to its record of achievements in the musical field, the program of the Milton College Glee club given at the Congregational church Thursday night was, from a standpoint of music and presentation one of the best given here.

The program met with popular approval and both soloists and the club were called back for encores on several occasions. The peer of any others ever heard in Janesville in an a la Harry Lauder presentation, was given by Richard Sheard of Milton Junction. Sheard sang "When I was Twenty-One" and "I Love a Lassie" and was, amidst thunderous applause, forced to sing an encore, "A Wee Dosh and Doris."

Classical, popular and operatic music offered a diversion desired in a long program. Other numbers making for success was the playing of the cornet quartet composed of Johnson, Arrington, Newman and Davis, the correct solo work of Mr. Johnson and the short dramatic sketch, "Coquette," with C. L. Hill starring as the fair maiden.

The heavier number was the singing of three pictures from Rubinstein's sacred opera "Tower of Babel." In this the men demonstrated their musical ability. Prof. L. H. Stricker, director, delighted with two solos, "A Cornish Floral Dance" and a negro spiritual, "Hard Trials." "Old King Cole" sung by the whole club, was the most comical of all.

The program was as follows: "For Fellowship and Song," "Glorious Forever," "Happy Songs of Long Ago," "Cousin Jedediah," "Sleep, Gentle Lady," "My Bonny Lass," three pictures from the tower of Babel, being the chorus of the Sons of Shem, Ham and Japhet; "Smile," "I'm Only a Sophomore," Mr. Davis and glee club.

and "Old Songs," "Long Long Ago" and "Meditation of Negro Songs."
